NEW REGULATIONS FOR DRY AGENTS ASKED BY TREAS.

Congress Appealed to to Make Changes in Volstead Law

Washington, Feb. 6.—(AP)—Several changes in the present prohibition regime including a proposal to create a new and separate prohibition bureau were sponsored in congress today by the administration.

Introduction of the Smoot bill followed disclosure that Secretary Mellon also was preparing to ask for amendment of the Volstead act, presumably to provide a new scale of penalties and differentiate between the bootleggers and the small consumer of liquor.

Almost at the same time a house committee gave its approval to a bill placing prohibition agents under the civil service regulations. Assistant Secretary Andrews of the treasury in charge of prohibition enforcement, endorsed the measure and both wets and dries in congress supported it.

The new prohibition bureau proposed under the Smoot bill would have at its head a commissioner receiving $10,000 a year.

One Responsible. All responsibility for enforcement of the dry laws would be taken away from the Commissioner of Internal Revenue and placed directly in the hands of Secretary of the Treasury, who would delegate it to the Prohibition Commissioner. The measure also proposes creation of a bureau of customs under a commissioner, and abolition of the present office of Director of Customs.

The two new bureaus would function under Assistant Secretary Andrews. Commissioner Blair of the Internal Revenue Bureau would be entirely relieved of responsibility for prohibition enforcement. The bill was referred to the finance committee.

The bill reported favorably in the house would apply the civil service regulations to all prohibition enforcement personnel except the higher officials. Present employees would be required to meet civil service requirements within six months or drop out. This bill was introduced by Representative Cramton, republican, Michigan, a dry leader.

Washington, Feb. 6.—(AP)—The treasury has drafted recommendations for a series of changes in the Volstead act and other statutes having to do with enforcement of prohibition, in order to meet new conditions.

The proposed changes were drafted by Assistant Secretary Andrews in the light of his experiences as chief enforcement officer and have been approved by Secretary Mellon. They will be submitted to congress immediately.

The character of the changes desired was not disclosed, but there were indications that the program included application of a graduated scale of penalties to differentiate between wholesale violations and hip pocket offenses.

The treasury's decision to seek amendment of the dry law coincides with a renewed drive in and out of congress for legalization of light wine and beer, but there was no indication that any step in the direction of such legislation was contemplated in the treasury program.

Form Beer-Wine Drive. The wine and beer drive, recently given endorsement by the Church Temperance Society of the Episcopal church, is expected to take organized form at a rally to be held on Washington's birthday under the auspices of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment.

Many bills for changes in the Volstead act are pending in congress, but the committee having jurisdiction are showing no inclination to consider them. Bills to authorize the making of beer and wine predominate among these measures.

Sometime ago District Attorney Buckner at New York announced a policy of concentrating on bootleggers and rum runners in preference to lesser offenders and afterward it was disclosed at the White House that while President Coolidge stood for full enforcement of the law he recognized that present enforcement machinery would not permit prohibition agents to give hip pocket violators the same attention as bootleggers.

It is assumed that the new legislation drafted at the treasury will have the full backing of the administration when it is submitted to congress, but the White House declined today to make any comment.

DIXON HIGH HUMILIATED BY ROCHELLE FIVE LAST NIGHT; BEATEN AT FINISH

Extra Time Necessary After Visitors Tie Score in Final

The Dixon high school basketball team suffered deeper humiliation than at any time this season last evening when they went down in defeat before the Rochelle high school five, the final score being 16 to 14. Leading their opponents until the very last and with the score standing 14 to 10 in Dixon's favor in the last three minutes of play, Rochelle staged a comeback which was forceful and effective and when the whistle sounded at the end of the final quarter, the score stood a tie with 14 points each. Three minutes of extra play was ruled by Referee Duncan and in this, Rochelle caged one basket from the floor which was sufficient to defeat Dixon. It was a hard game to lose, Dixon also caging one in the extra three minutes of play but Referee Duncan ruled that the ball hit the ceiling and the points did not count.

The second team were more successful in their curtain raiser against the Rochelle Lightweights. The teams were fairly evenly matched and played a thrilling game from the very start, but Dixon had the edge and won by a score of 15 to 11.

MANY INTERESTED IN ENGINE COURSE AT DIXON SCHOOL

Big Enrollment Expected; Farmers Should Join Classes

Farmers in the vicinity of Dixon are manifesting a great deal of interest in the gasoline engine and tractor short course which is to be conducted by the agricultural department of the local high school. Several have registered for the entire two weeks course and there is plenty of room on the list for others who desire to take advantage of this opportunity.

Prof. Weiss of the agricultural department of the high school has prepared a list of questions which are applicable to those applying for the course.

What do you know about a gasoline engine?
What importance does the tractor, the automobile, the stationary engine have on your farm?

Did you ever have engine trouble and not have any idea what to do or what was wrong?

Has not your present knowledge of engines made it easier for you to run your tractor, etc?

Do you believe that the use of machinery is increasing?

Have you or your neighbors ever saved time and money by knowing how to repair the engines?

Would it not pay you to know more about engines?

Wouldn't a knowledge of engines and a familiarity with engine repair be of great help to you in picking out a tractor, a stationary engine or an automobile?

Do you have a tractor that needs overhauling?

The course is to be offered to those interested at the Duffy garage on Ottawa avenue north of First street opening Monday, Feb. 15 and continuing through the 27th. Small engines will be worked on the first day and a very capable instructor, an authority on gas engine construction will have charge of the course. Farmers using these farm necessities are invited to enroll for the two weeks course and may do so by calling Prof. John Weiss at N209, the high school or his home, R223.

Deadly Gases Still Baffle Efforts to Get Miners' Bodies

Pittsburgh, Pa., Feb. 6.—(AP)—Deadly gases in the Hoaming Mine of the Pittsburgh Terminal Coal Mine Company still baffled rescuers today in their efforts to reach 15 miners who were entombed by an explosion Wednesday afternoon. Following a test of the air, mine officials announced it would be unsafe to remove until midnight, the fire walls in the sealed off section of the mine where the blast occurred. The walls were put up to smother the fire when hope was abandoned that any of those trapped were alive. Officials said outside indications were that the fire was out, but that the wall-in section was filled with gases.

Pope's Strength Taxed Many Times During Year

Rome, Feb. 6.—(AP)—Pope Pius has weathered the strain of almost uninterrupted daily activities during the 1925 Holy Year with no loss of health or strength. Members of his court assert that the pontiff feels better now than he did a year ago.

Often during the Holy Year His Holiness was close to the danger point, but his robust constitution, buoyed up by his love for the work, bore him safely through every crisis. Often he told his intimates that he was becoming badly fatigued, but that "the moment has not come to admit it publicly."

Southampton, Eng., Feb. 6.—(AP)—The United States Liner President Roosevelt saviour of the crew of the British steamer Antiope was welcomed by the roar of sirens and whistles from all harbor craft when she arrived today from Bremerhaven on her return trip to New York.

Sir Philip Cunliffe-Lister, president of the board of trade; Captain Luke McNamee, American naval attaché in London and other officials congratulated Captain Fried of the President Roosevelt and the members of the crew who lined up on deck to greet the official party.

Captain Fried received the visitors at the head of the gangway and after an exchange of greetings presented his officers and the lifeboat crew to Sir Philip who shook hands and talked with each man, warmly congratulating all in the name of the King on their heroism.

Lord Appley, president of the Southampton Pilots Association, presented Captain Fried with an ebony walking stick in the name of the association.

Sir Philip greeted all of the officers and members of the life boat crew in the name of the King and after lunch presented to those who engaged personally in the rescue the "gold medal for gallantry for saving life at sea." He also presented plates from the board of trade to Captain Fried, First Officer Miller, Third Officer Sloane and Fourth Officer Upton.

EXPECT ARRESTS SOON IN THEFT OF ALCOHOL FRI. Peoria Hi-Jackers are Sought at Principals in Robbery

Peoria, Ill., Feb. 6.—(AP)—Convinced that local hi-jackers were the principals in the $10,000 theft in the hold-up of a Rock Island Railroad merchandise train near Putnam yesterday morning, federal agents of Chicago started an investigation today here and in Peoria. They expected arrests would follow soon.

The alcohol was consigned from the Corning Distillery here to Des Moines, Iowa. The train left the Rock Island yards about 10 o'clock Thursday night and on a steep grade known as Henry Hill, about forty miles north of here, it suddenly jarrred to a stop. The air couplings had been severed.

While some of the masked robbers held the engine crew at bay with pistols and shotguns, others herded the remaining trainmen into the caboose and took the alcohol. The trucks loaded, the entire band vanished in the darkness.

Communicating with the police of that city Chief Van Bibber learned that Tate had formerly lived in Elgin at the address given, but left there several weeks ago for Dixon.

CROWDS FOUGHT TO VIEW LAST RITES OF STAR

Five Women Fainted at Funeral of Barbara LaMarr Friday

Los Angeles, Calif., Feb. 6.—(AP)—Five women fainted in the crowd of several thousand persons which gathered at the funeral services of Barbara LaMarr, the moving picture star, who died a week ago and was buried yesterday.

Only a few friends and close acquaintances attended the services, as was the wish of Miss LaMarr. The crowd formed in front of the funeral chapel and fought police to get a glimpse of the casket as it was started on the way to the cemetery.

The five women who fainted were rescued from being trampled on only by strenuous efforts of police. A sixth woman was so forceful in her attempts to view the casket that she was ejected from the crowd, fighting, by police.

With the departure of the funeral party, many of the crowd rushed into the chapel, although everything, even to the last wreath, had been removed. Upwards of 10,000 persons filed past to bier during the three days her body lay in state in a chapel.

Will Give Picture to Worshippers Sunday P. M.

Through the courtesy of the Chicago Herald-Examiner there will be presented to each attendant at the Presbyterian vespers service Sunday a copy of the illustration that headed the editorial last Sunday. Rev. Prentiss Hovey Case was struck by this editorial as being especially worth while and the illustration worth a place in the room of every American boy so he took the matter up with the Herald-Examiner and received from them special permission to use and print the picture. In fact the Herald-Examiner sent him the "matrix" from which the editorial page was printed that he might use it in the service. Copies are being printed by The Telegraph on especially fine paper and a copy of this should be in the room of every Dixon boy. A copy will be presented to every attendant at the Vespers Service Sunday. The sermon will be on "Heroism" and the contrast will be drawn between the heroism of the champion pugilist and the heroism of Abraham Lincoln.

FORMER BELVIDERE DOCTOR DISCLOSED AS WOMAN WHEN DEATH CAME AT MENA, ARK.

Strange Romance of Years Ago Bared by Sickness

Belvidere—Twenty-five years ago there came to Belvidere a doctor giving the name of Mayfield. He had cured a cancer for the relative of Belvidere people, and was summoned here for the purpose of treating a similar growth from which Mrs. Seymour Fox was suffering.

Successful in this attempt, Dr. Mayfield located in Belvidere, and a little later a woman came here and was introduced as Mrs. Mayfield. She had been previously married.

Some time later there was a controversy between Dr. Mayfield and wife, and following their separation, it was stated that Mrs. Mayfield had told astonished friends that Dr. Mayfield was a woman.

Revealed as Woman. Today at Mena, Ark., Dr. M. V. Mayfield, a "cancer specialist," stricken on what is believed to be a fatal illness, is revealed to be a woman.

It is believed that the Mena Dr. Mayfield and the Belvidere Dr. Mayfield are one and the same.

The doctor left Belvidere soon after the trouble with "his" wife. In Belvidere the doctor was quite well known for a time, and apparently made it a point to get where moon congregated, particularly after the story got out that he was a woman.

Slight in stature, effeminate in appearance, smooth faced, but always at ease among men, and always careful and circumspect in behavior, he became well known about the city.

He appeared to be successful in his cancer cure, in at least number of cases here. In conversation with a reporter at that time he said that when he died, the world would be given his formula, and not before.

U. S. CAN CLAIM LAND FOUND BY ARCTIC FLIERS

Stefansson Cites History to Prove His Statements

Detroit, Mich., Feb. 6.—(AP)—Any new land discovered in the Arctic by Major Thomas G. Lamplighter or Captain G. H. Wilkins will be claimed for the United States of America "and there will be no dispute about our country's right to claim it," Vilhjalmur Stefansson, Arctic explorer, said today.

"I have heard the argument put forth," Stefansson said, "that because Wilkins is an Australian, any new land he may discover may cause a dispute about our country's ownership of it. To my mind that is idle talk."

"Columbus, a citizen of Italy discovered America for Spain. John Cabot, at the time he sailed under England's flag, was a citizen of Naples, and yet the claims to Canada that arise from his voyages were indisputably British."

"Hendrik Hudson, when he sailed on behalf of Holland, was a citizen of England. Yet it was this discovery of the Hudson river and The Netherlands, later called New York that gave Holland its claims to New York."

"I know of no case where discovery rights were questioned because the man in command of the expedition was an alien, even when those who outfitted the expedition were private nationals rather than the government."

TWO HEROES MADE LAY REPORTERS OF ASSOCIATED PRESS

Commander Rodgers and Capt. Fried are Given Watches by A.P.

New York, Feb. 6.—(AP)—Two men of the 36 whose straightforward, unvarnished narratives of heroic deeds thrilled the world, are to receive special awards as reporters of The Associated Press. It will be first time laymen have been accorded such honors.

Gold watches are to be presented to Captain George Fried of the steamship President Roosevelt, who guided the rescue of the 27 men from the British freighter Antiope, wrecked in mid-Atlantic recently—and to Commander John Rodgers, U. S. N., who with four mates, battled the Pacific for nine days last summer when he was lost in a 2,000 mile flight from San Francisco to Hawaii.

As honorary associates in the task of reporting world events, Fried and Rodgers will be given medals of distinction hitherto reserved for staff reporters of The Associated Press. Club reporters, in effect, when drafted in the public interest, they made good at once. The watches will bear inscriptions describing the specific events to which they were assigned to cover. They were selected because they were in the best position to tell an anxious public quickly and accurately what had happened.

Appeal is For Facts. The wide use made of their narratives and the interest aroused by them showed that, be it thrilling adventure or anything else, the great appeal is in the facts intelligently presented.

No exaggeration by a verbal rouge was needed by Fried and Rodgers. Their tales telling how in bright moonlight his men took off the crew of the Antiope, weak, helpless, hungry, after five of the Roosevelt's life boats had been smashed. Nor was it necessary to embellish the narrative of Rodgers about himself and his men keeping alive through water distilled by a little still his mother had insisted he take with him.

Rodgers, asked, when found at Hawaii, to give the public the facts, performed the task so well that his was the first signed story ever carried by The Associated Press.

Watches Inscribed. The inscription for Captain Fried's watch is: "Rescue of the Crew of the Antiope. Presented to Captain George Fried by The Associated Press as a souvenir of enrollment as a member of the staff, January 28-28, 1925."

The inscription for Commander Rodgers' watch is: "Adventure of the crew of the PN-9. Presented to Commander John Rodgers, U. S. N., by The Associated Press as a souvenir of enrollment as a member of the staff, September 11, 1925."

Kent Cooper, general manager of the Associated Press has wired Captain Fried and Commander Rodgers: "The news staff salutes these laymen and greets them as honorary associates in the task of reporting world events. News of such intimate concern to everyone that there is real reason to believe that the events of transcendent importance they uncovered, accepted and fulfilled an A. P. news assignment. The excellent story written by Commander Rodgers was amply sufficient warrant in itself for making the exception to previous recognition for unusual journalistic enterprise. When, within a few months, Captain Fried responded so efficiently, the warrant for making exceptions was confirmed and naturally Commander Rodgers was included."

BODIES FOUND IN HOLLOW AT EDWARDSVILLE

Evidence Shows They Died in Battle To Enforce Law

Edwardsville, Ill., Feb. 6.—(AP)—Three men who several months ago rented a 200 acre tract near Horse Shoe Lake are sought by Madison County authorities investigating the slaying of Constable Omer Hockett, 38, and his assistant, John Balke, 24, whose bodies were found yesterday in a shallow grave on the lake. Slaying of the two officers by moonshiners who thwarted a raid is pictured by officials in charge of the investigation.

The officers, who disappeared January 29 when they started from Ed wardsville on a liquor raid, are believed by authorities to have been caught by moonshiners and tortured for six days with hands wired behind them before they were killed as their captors abandoned their rendezvous.

In an abandoned farm house near the grave where federal prohibition agents stumbled upon the bodies found was containing nearly 100,000 gallons of whiskey mash. They also found parts of two stills.

The house, its windows shattered by bullets, gave evidence of a battle between the moonshiners and the officers preceding the capture.

That both officers were shot and killed while they were bound is indicated, authorities say, by the fact that each was shot under the left eye, the bullet penetrating his brain. Faces of the victims were powder burned.

TODAY'S MARKET REPORTS

Butter Market

Chicago, Feb. 6.—(AP)—Considerable firmness was noted on all butter markets early in the week and although supplies were somewhat limited demand was fairly active and the markets on the whole appeared quite steady.

Because of the rather sharp fluctuations during the latter part of January the markets were already sensitive and traders were generally uncertain as to what the major trend would be, but appeared to favor lower prices. Receivers under existing conditions were anxious to keep goods moving and slight accumulations were viewed with concern even to the point of anticipating the following day's markets in order to interest buyers.

On Thursday and Friday a nervous tone was noted on all markets with some price declines effective especially at Chicago where buying support was withdrawn.

The change from the firm position of last week to the easier nervous condition which prevails at the moment further unsettled minds of the operators as to the future needs. At the close all markets appeared very nervous and unsettled.

Weekly Grain Review

Chicago, Feb. 6.—(AP)—Wheat and corn have parted company this week, wheat going up and corn down. With rains delaying the movement of the wheat crop in Argentina, world supply and demand conditions for wheat tightened somewhat, whereas offerings of corn were officially reported as in excess of current needs. Compared with a week ago wheat this morning was 1/2c to 3/4c higher, corn 1/2c to 3/4c down, oats 1/2c decline to 1/2c advance and provisions varying from 20c lower to a rise of 35c.

According to a trade authority, the world's wheat carry over will amount to only 39,000,000 bushels at the close of the present season, a total less than the United States alone carried over last summer. Increased arrivals of domestic wheat southward counted as only a temporary bearish factor in the face of broadened European demand for wheat from North America.

Especially toward the end of the week, a cool deal of note was taken of assertions that Europe is rapidly absorbing the North American wheat surplus and that Canadian farm holdings have been reduced to below 10 percent of the amount harvested in Canada this season. Entry of farm cooperative organizations into the export field is given in some quarters as a cause of misunderstanding of the real magnitude of Canadian wheat business with Europe. One month's total of this business has been shown to total nearly twice the corresponding figure a year back.

Liberal arrivals of corn in Chicago, acted as a weight on the corn market and likewise on oats.

THE VOICE WITH THE SMILE

By Pat Patten in the Moline, Ill. Dispatch.
Unseen and unknown by the legion it serves,
Immune to all longing for fame,
Content though deprived of the praise it deserves,
To shoulder unmerited blame,
Through the glare of the day or the long silent night
It answers our slightest desire:
Doing its duty and doing it right—
The voice with the smile on the wire.

Your call is but one of the millions it speeds
To caution or comfort a friend,
To lighten the load of a brother who needs
The solace your word may extend.
We take it for granted and rail at its faults,
Forgetting that it, too, may tire,
This ode, though imperfect, its service exalts—
The voice with the smile on the wire.

Card Party Was Most Enjoyable

At five hundred Mrs. Peter Phalen won the first prize; Mrs. Henry Bott winning the second prize. Clarence Kelley won the first prize at five hundred for the men and John Minihan won the second prize. Delicious refreshments were served and a pleasant social hour was enjoyed by all present after the bridge and five hundred, all declaring it a most enjoyable evening in every respect.

FASHION HINTS—

Dark Days Ahead.
Black satin frocks are being exploited in Paris, with very great success and it is expected that black will stage something of a comeback here in the very near future.
New Styles in Hats.
There are many new developments in millinery, first in importance is the turban which is developed in felt and in silk and in metal fabrics. Next comes the large hat, untrimmed and exceedingly smart.
Chiffon and Lace.
The combination of lace and chiffon is growing in popularity and some of the smartest afternoon gowns for spring are developed from these two fabrics.

You can't make Mayfair sophisticated of women who would rather bend their minds and energies to babies and broomsticks.

Besides, deep in the heart of even the most sophisticated of Mayfair lives the desire for privacy in one's own home. And a private castle can't be built around a community kitchen.

SUSPENDERS NOW THE FASHION AT CONVERSE—

Spartanburg, S. C., Feb. 6.—(AP)—Suspenders, or "galluses" to hold up the skirts is the latest thing in women's fashions, the girls of Converse College say, who are today idling over the campus thrushly attire.

The suspenders have succeeded the belt and are very conspicuous as no drab colored cross pieces are used, all colors of the rainbow being blended in those worn here. White shirt waists are worn with the skirts. The girls do not trust the nail often used in lieu of the missing button and connect the "galluses" and skirt with safety pins.

BY CYNTHIA GREY—

She sat behind me, a youthful chatter; at the movies the other night. She was so distressed. Things were so dull! Absolutely the only thing happening was the orchestra sawing away at "The Second Hungarian." "Gee, I hate this part of the show!" she exclaimed to her fellow swain. "It drives me wild just to sit still and listen!"

"Me, too!" said her escort.

As a matter of fact, the bare-armed damozel did anything but just "sit still and listen!" Her voice did have some effect!

Ever With Us.

But this is no dissertation on the sins of "The Movie Clacker." Like the poor, they will be ever with us. Our text is: "It drives me wild just to sit still and listen!"

Sitting still and watching the parade of love and hate, honesty and intrigue on the silver sheet is another thing. One can imagine oneself in the center of the fray. It demands no particular inner equipment on the part of the watcher such as music does demand.

There's no earthly sense in always harping back to our grandmothers. There's no earthly or heavenly reason why we should do as they did, think as they thought, or enjoy as they enjoyed, but—

One cannot help contrasting the reaction of grandmama with that of the modern girl who "can't bear just to sit still and listen!"

Grandmama would have thought her self in heaven if just once a year she could have donned a pretty dress, had a facial and manicure, been called for in a taxi, and gone to a beautiful picture house where a frock-coated orchestra played "The Second Hungarian Rhapsody."

Grandma would no more have thought of asking for more—than for a blue rose or a pink pearl!

Which, as we have already remarked, doesn't mean that there's any good reason why grandmama's granddaughter ter shouldn't ask for "more," if she can get it, but—

Is the modern maid, with all her taken-for-granted pleasures, any happier than her grandmother whose idea of "a swell time" was to smear her face with constarch—and beet juice, if she wanted to be extra devilish—and go to a box social at the church?

And where is this eternal grand march after "things" leading us?

Stroll through the thousands of girls out in quest of "things."

Distressed, tired, nervous faces. So many "things" brought and sold!

All so unlovely, so unnecessary, so wasteful, so little contributory to the real symphony of gracious, happy living!

Nor is the working girl much more of a slinner than her married sisters, if they have leisure.

It makes 'em "wild" to look at paintings, to attend a concert, or lecture, to hike over the frozen roads of winter. Movie, dance, cabaret—these three make their life!

A great London nerve specialist says the entire white race is committing suicide.

"The entire white family will be wiped off the globe through insanity induced by constantly dissipated nervous energy," he states.

How about a law prohibiting the manufacture of unnecessary "things" whose acquiring keeps us all on the grand rush?

Dr. Cummings' Health Column

BY DR. HUGH S. CUMMING
Surgeon General, U. S. Public Health Service

While many waste products of the human body are discharged through the skin, this excretory function is just one of the important services which the skin performs. Many people do not understand that the evaporation of the water from the skin is not primarily carried on by nature in order to remove water from the system which must again be replaced by more drinking water.

When you perspire freely you are really cooling the body. When you fail to perspire freely the heat of the body is kept in and the body is kept warm. But this does not mean that perspiration should be checked in order that heat may be conserved.

In order that you may better understand the care which the skin requires, you should know that the skin is composed of layers, an upper layer and an under layer. The dead layers of cells which form the outer surface of the skin are protective in function. Calluses and corns result from unusual pressure being exerted upon some part of the skin. When the skin is subjected to unusual pressure over a small area, the lower cells of the epidermis multiply rapidly and push upward in great numbers, forming a rounded elevation.

Evaporation
When the body becomes heated the glands of the skin remove much of the water from the blood as it flows out to the surface through the small tubes or capillaries. On the surface this water quickly evaporates and the skin of the body is cooled during the process of evaporation.

Much waste material is also thrown off by the body through the sweat glands and passes out with the water. If this waste material is not removed by washing the skin it accumulates on the surface of the body.

The sweat glands of your body are working all the time but the amount of water which is thrown off is so small and evaporates so quickly that it is not noticeable. This kind of perspiration is known as insensible perspiration.

If you stop to consider that the sweat glands of your body are functioning continuously as excretory agents, throwing off waste material as well as water, you will better understand the importance which frequent bathing plays in the care of the skin and in general health.

IOWA FOR GRAVEL ROADS.

Over in Iowa they are contemplating the improvement of about 3000 miles of highway in the next three years. There is a proposition also to increase the gas tax to 3 cents a gallon in order to provide some of the funds. Of the little less than 3000 miles all of it is to be gravel except 46 miles to be paved. It is surely true that Iowa should wake up to some kind of road improvement. But why should it not profit by the experience of other states? There's Wisconsin, for instance, which has had the finest gravel roads in the north in the last several years. After its experience Wisconsin has found the upkeep of gravel roads too expensive, and for the last year or two there has been a turning to concrete. Many good gravel roads in that state have given way to concrete paving.

WHY NOT SAVE 12 BILLIONS IN INTEREST?

The public debt at present, Secretary Mellon says, is about 20 billion. At the present rate it can be paid off by 1944, or in about 12½ years. The interest payments thereon in these 18½ years will be $4,040,000,000. If however, we slow up on payments and extend the time of extinguishing the debt to 62 years, as is proposed by some, the interest payments on the debt will run up to nearly four times as much—to $16,126,500,000. Secretary Mellon declares that this slower payment of the debt would be uneconomic, and his favors paying at the present rate.

GASOLINE.

The makers of inexpensive automobiles are watching the price of gasoline very carefully.

If gasoline goes too high, the man with the flivver will find it cheaper to use street cars and railroads. That will throttle the automobile industry.

You can worry about gasoline prices if you wish to. But the makers of small cars will do it for you, and they are in a position to meet the situation by finding new sources, devising substitutes, or by improving motors much better than you are.

PERSONAL ELEMENT.

Few cities in the country are not bothered with traffic problems.

Many plans are being considered. Remember this; no plan will be a success that does not take into consideration the personal equation.

No rule can be made effective unless motorists and pedestrians—and policemen—favor it.

A red light never stopped a runaway horse, and will not stop a motorist with a runaway mind.

A CHEER.

The government estimates that it takes $2 to buy what $1 did in 1890.

But before you condemn inflation, Wall Street, the war, or modern taxes, find out what dad was getting in 1890. We'll bet he wasn't getting $1 for every two of yours today—not by a four-letter word meaning to patch socks.

Those who have been pestered by receipts of unordered goods, to be paid for if acceptable, to be returned otherwise, will be glad to know that the postoffice department has prohibited the sending of any matter by mail e. o. d., unless the shipments are based on bona fide orders or in conformity with agreements between the sender and addressee. So one may waste-basket or keep without remitting for them any goods received but not ordered.

The yellow peril as seen in England is not the peril of war between the races, but the peril of manufacture. Japan, having waked up and learned the arts of civilization, is doing its own manufacturing, and is exporting instead of importing. That accounts for much of the unemployment in England.

Talk about auto truck competition with railroads. Why the trucks have been monopolizing 90 percent of the booze running business. Now the railroads are ready to give them the other 10 percent.

In Paris, a postman has invented a motorless airplane. Before long we may get our bills a few hours earlier.

New York university professor says the world's ideals are gone but means they don't agree with his.

Public opinion is not always correct. You don't have to have a couple of college degrees to be ignorant.

Why don't the women catch pneumonia? That's easy. Less clothes they wear the warmer they are.

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS

by Olive Roberts Barton

THE DOLLS GO HOME

"By all the little rain toads and tree toads and hep toads!" he cried. Such a big fat umbrella!"

When Mister Snoopy, the Shadow Man, rained out of Hidy Go Land, the sun was shining brightly.

But when Mister Sprinkle Blow, the weather man, looked down and saw what was going on, he rolled a cloud over the sun and put Mister Snoopy out for good and all!

"Yes, sir! That was the end of him, so Mister Havalook saved his pen-pens after all, and I hope he built his nice new laundry and is living peacefully with Sniff Whisker, the mayor as Ash Can Town.

As for the umbrella that Mister Snoopy threw up at the moon with all the dolls and other Hidy Go people tied up in it, including the Twins—well!

Instead of going to the moon, the umbrella was heading straight for the sun, because the moon was in China at that minute.

But the big umbrella never got to the sun because Mister Sprinkle Blow's cloud was in the way. That jolly fairyman was just about to fill up his barrel marked "Regular Pour-downs" when pop! The big umbrella came bursting through the cloud and landed right at Mister Sprinkle Blow's feet.

"By all the little rain-toads and tree-toads and hep-toads!" he cried. "Such a big fat umbrella. Really I never saw such a fat umbrella in my life! It's even fatter than the big umbrella I ride down to the earth on when I go on my travels."

Just then he heard voices crying faintly, "Help! Help!"

"Why it's a talking umbrella!" said Mister Sprinkle Blow. "It must have a radio in it."

So he untied the string at the top—and out rolled Nancy and Nick and all the dolls. The gingerbread man was nothing but crumbs, alas!

"What's all this?" cried the jolly old weatherman fairy. "Where have you been and where are you going, my dears?"

MY LIL TOT

See that youngster down the street? She's a tot of mine. Sweetest child you'll ever meet. Simply super-dine. Only five, but as she grows, say, you'd be surprised just how much this youngster knows. I've just realized.

Cute? Why, gee, she's cuter still. Clever little ways. Things she does are fit to kill every time she plays. Rules around my neighborhood. Sister's what she's called. Spirit does the neighbors good. That's what she's installed.

Races in and races out, happy all day long. When this youngster's not about everything seems wrong. Only to the corner she ever likes to roam. That's the place she waits for me when I'm comin' home.

Every night when sleep time comes, sister's tucked in bed. Crazy tunes her daddy hums, or the good night's said. Simply had to get this out. Now I'm feelin' fine. Here's to one I'm wild about—she's a tot of mine.

We all make mistakes—frinstance the fellow who got Pittsburg during international broadcasting week, and it was so cloudy he thought he had London.

The shades of night are falling fast because young girls are noisier at bed time.

Some vocalists remind one of Fritz Kreisler 'cause he doesn't sing either.

Sister got a shingle, then Mom followed in a hurry. Father's hair has vanished so He doesn't have to worry.

NOW, HONESTLY—

All of us don't know so much, after all.

For instance—what hooks are for. We walk into the house, drop our overcoats most any place; toss our hats on a chair; fling our mufflers on the dining room table, and, at reticiding time, do likewise with all other wearing apparel.

Course it gives mothers a lot of

HIDIN' THINGS

A baby shouldn't eat of too much candy, so they say. It makes them sick, and shucks, it isn't nice to feel that way. But still there's no discretion in a tiny youngster's mind, so how can people blame them when they eat all they can find?

Each household has some china that is broken by a touch. I guess perhaps the reason is because it cost so much. To keep a wee one shy of it is something you can't teach, so, after all, it's mighty wise to put it out of reach. In mother's darning basket are some needles, yarn and thread. Why is it every baby to the darning basket's bed? We just can't let the needles prick and make the siddy cry. That's why you'll find the darning basket hidden way up high.

It keeps the grown-ups busy when a little tot's around, ahidin' things in secret spots where they cannot be found. But, as the tot grows older, it imagines it's a game, and so it keeps on hunting, an' it finds things, just the same.

Some people are finished singers, and some ought to be.

If we knew just when the radio announcer was going to quit gabbing, and switch to music, we'd know just when to turn the dials on and off.

If the Prince of Wales doesn't quit riding horses they're gonna "crash" him. And, if he does, some day they'll crown him anyway.

The neighbors knew that he was kind.

He wouldn't hurt a pup. But, golly, every morning he would heat his wifey up.

NOW, HONESTLY—

Just supposing you had to serve all of the time that you have kept people waiting.

All the world has a habit of being late for engagements. Even on the person who gets there first is late—but not so much so as the other party.

If there were some way to set our watches so a six o'clock engagement would mean six thirty—or a ten o'clock one mean eleven, it wouldn't be so bad.

But, so long as there isn't—let's try being on time.

I don't know whether or not to give credit to the man who tells his wife everything that happens—and then some.

The world is so full of a number of things—and most women want all of them.

Eleven cubic feet of water, when frozen, make twelve cubic feet of ice. Unfrozen, they make eleven cubic feet of water.

Prof. Obergosh Sakes has solved the problem of what to do when you order coffee without cream, and they haven't got any cream. Get it with out milk.

Is this your BIRTHDAY

SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 6

If so, your health will be costly to you and unless you watch it carefully your energy will give out before you gain the success you deserve.

You will enjoy writing, as literature appeals to you, and you have great chances of becoming nationally known for your writings.

Success will cause you to wear "the high hat" for a time, but you will drop your "high browishness" as you realize its handicaps to you in dealing with business associates.

SUNDAY, FEBRUARY 7

If so, your first consideration must be your health. A tendency toward weakness can be overcome, however, if proper care of diet and living conditions is observed. You will be handicapped early in life by this weakness, but with care your manhood will be hearty and vigorous.

Your principal interests will be along literary and scientific lines.

Again, you must take care not to overdo this, which is apt to be confusing.

Your married life will be happy. It will not commence until after you are fully grown.

A THOUGHT FOR TODAY

Thou shalt not oppress a stranger; for ye know the heart of a stranger, seeing ye were strangers in the land of Egypt.—Ex. 23:9.

There is an emanation from the heart in genuine hospitality which cannot be described, but is immediately felt and puts the stranger at his ease.—Washington Irving.

"Not at all," he replied heartily. "Then I had better take the first train home," she decided.

a Record Breaking Year ... and a still Greater Year to Come

With sales in excess of 250,000 cars, Dodge Brothers, Inc. have just completed the greatest year in their history.

Had it been possible to produce cars in sufficient numbers, their increase over 1924 would have been even more substantial.

This year the production problem has been mastered. A $10,000,000 expansion program stands completed—and the enormous output of 1925 will be nearly doubled!

Production on this stupendous scale makes possible the astounding low prices announced January 7th.

It makes them possible even though the car is better today than ever before. These are but a few of the vital refinements—

Rich and attractive new colors.
Absolute smoothness of engine operation.
A new snap and elasticity of operation throughout.
Smart and stylish new body lines.
Complete vision from every angle of the sturdy all-steel body.

Dodge Brothers Motor Car has always been an exceptional product. With these refinements, at these new prices, it is without question the greatest value Dodge Brothers have ever offered.

Sunday afternoon the local Y. M. C. A. will hold its first discussion group for young men of the city. Dr. W. W. Peters, President of Mount Morris College, has been secured for the first speaker and an address well worth hearing is assured for every man attending this discussion group at 3:30 in the lobby of the "Y". This Sunday afternoon men's meeting is in response to the request of a number of young men of the city for such an activity and it is fully expected that a good number will be present for the opening session.

Independents Trimmed Aggies at Cage Battle

The Y. M. C. A. Independents, a basketball team composed of eight young men from the Young Men's Club, evened the score with the "Aggies" from the High School by defeating them on the "Y" floor Friday afternoon. The "Aggies" were unable to break through the fast-forming defense of the Independents, but resorted to the long shot method and gave the Independents lots of worry as to their laurels. The final score was, Independents, 17; "Aggies", 16.

WILL REPRESENT DIXON AT STATE ART CONVENTION

E. N. Howell Accepted Invitation to Big State Meeting

Dixon will be represented at the mid-winter meeting of the Art Extension Committee to be held in Chicago starting Feb. 16. A general appeal has been sent out by R. E. Hieronymus, community advisor from the state university at Urbana, requesting the attendance of a large number at the sessions. To those which have been received locally, he says: "My dear friends: Hope Dixon can be generously represented this time. Special reasons. Best wishes. R. E. H."

E. N. Howell has mailed his acceptance and will attend the sessions. The central interest of this meeting is, of course, the annual All Illinois Dinner in honor of the chairman, Lorado Taft. While this is primarily a University of Illinois dinner for one of its most illustrious graduates, many organizations and associations with which he has been identified or through which he has worked are co-operating. Among these are: Cliff Dwellers, Cordon Club, Friends of Our Native Landscape, Prairie Club, Conservation Council, Municipal Art League, Federation of Women's Clubs, Parent-Teacher Association, Illinois Forestry Association, and various civic and business organizations of the city and state. His many personal friends in Chicago and throughout the state are rejoicing that this recognition is given him. Nothing will please him more than a full attendance at this meeting.

The opening session will be held at the Field Columbian Museum starting at 10 o'clock Tuesday morning, Feb. 16. The two day session will be full of interesting lectures, visits and luncheons for those who are interested in the success of the Art Extension committee.

Leech Subject of Editorial in Home Paper for Fast Work

The Amboy News says editorially of County Judge William Leech: "County Judge William L. Leech is to be commended for the stern methods employed in meeting out just punishment to disturbers of the public peace, and those endangering the public welfare. His action of this week in fining and sentencing the parties who participated in the disgraceful affair just north of the city limits last Saturday night was in line with his past policy in such matters. Lee County, through Judge Leech, has set some admirable records for swift justice, and if only Cook county and courts in other larger, more metropolitan centers in this nation could act as quickly and as definitely in the administration of the law, there would be far less crime and less tendency to crime than there is at present in America."

THREE GIRLS NOT CLARK HEIRESSSES THEIR AUNT SAYS

Refutes Claim They are Related to Millionaire Copper Man

St. Joseph, Mo., Feb. 6.—(AP)—The late Senator W. A. Clark, copper king of Montana, was not the father of the three women who claim to be his daughters and ask a share in his $50,000,000 estate, Mrs. Amanda Cottrell, 73, aunt of the three contestants, said last night.

In an interview with the St. Joseph Gazette, Mrs. Cottrell said that the late senator Clark was not her brother, the William A. Clark, Stewartsville, Mo., druggist, who deserted his wife and three small daughters to clope in 1879 with a family servant. The daughters of the druggist, now Mrs. Addie Miller of Denver; Mrs. Effie McWilliams of Clarkdale and Mrs. Alma Hines of Orrick, Mo., have instituted proceedings to prove the millionaire copper man was their father.

Both men taught school near Clarkdale, Mo., but in other respects their careers are said to have differed. The Cottrells said the druggist Clark was born in Indiana in 1845, obtained a common school education in that state and came to Missouri in 1865, settling with his parents near the site of Clarkdale. In 1869 he married Kate Brooks, a neighbor. Shortly before his marriage, he entered the drug business, continuing to operate his store until his elopement.

"Who's Who in America," states that the late Senator was born in Connelville, Pa., in 1839, was educated in law at Mount Pleasant, Iowa, taught school in Missouri in 1859-60 and went to Montana in 1863. He was married in 1869 to Kate Stauffer of Connelville.

In 1877 when Senator Clark was grand master of the Montana Masons and during 1878 when he led the Butte Battalion in the Nez Perce Indian Campaign, Clark, the druggist was still a Stewartsville storekeeper, said Mrs. Cottrell.

STILLMANS SAIL FOR EUROPE TO BE RECONCILED

Sensational Litigation of Five Years Has Been Dropped

New York, Feb. 6.—(AP)—The New York American in a copyrighted story today says that Mr. and Mrs. James A. Stillman sailed for Europe aboard the Olympic at midnight, happy in a trial reconciliation after their sensational five year divorce litigation.

The banker recognizes Baby Guy Stillman now seven years old as his son and withdraws his allegations in his unsuccessful divorce suit that the boy is the son of Fred Beauvais, Indian guide.

A divorce suit recently started by Mrs. Stillman is to be dropped and lawyers of both have been notified their services are no longer required.

For the sake of their children, the American continues, the Stillmans are seeking to forget the many sensational charges they hurled at each other during the divorce trial.

Mr. and Mrs. Stillman will stay in Paris where they will meet Mr. and Mrs. Henry P. Lavinson. The latter is Anne Stillman, their daughter, at whose marriage on October 8, 1924, the estranged father and mother saw each other for the first time after the hectic days of their divorce fight.

Mrs. Stillman, the American says, has promised to do everything in her power to aid her husband to rehabilitate himself in the world of finance and society.

Chicago and Ohio Will Play Only Big Ten Tilt

Chicago, Feb. 6—(AP)—Crippled by loss of a star player, Chicago and Ohio State will meet tonight in the only Western conference basketball game affecting leading contenders from Minnesota and Iowa squaring for placement in the second division.

The Buckeyes suffered a heavy blow in the injury of Cunningham, center, Chicago's star guard, McDonough, is out with a hurt ankle and his running mate Hoerger has a touch of flu and may not be able to play.

By a victory Ohio can break its third place tie with Purdue. A win by Chicago would strengthen its hold on a second division first place. Iowa and Minnesota hope only to get farther away from the cellar now the undisputed position of Northwestern.

The conference swings into full stride again next week after a fortnight's abbreviated schedule, due to examinations.

Two Skaters Suspended for Their Non-Appearance
New York, Feb. 6—(AP)—Joe Moore of New York, international indoor champion, and Charles Gorman, Canadian, title holder, were considered under suspension today by the International Skating Union for failure to appear yesterday at an international title meet in Detroit. The Middle Atlantic Association and Canadian officials declined to support the union's stand however. They claimed that neither Moore nor Gorman had been officially entered in the meet.

BEAR STORY IS SENT FROM ROCK FALLS QUINTET

Pignatelli, Star, to be Out of Battle There Tonight

The Sterling Gazette of Friday evening contained the following bear story from Rock Falls high school relating to this evening's game in that city between Dixon and Rock Falls:

Tomorrow, Saturday night, there will be one game in town and that will be the big game of the season at the Rock Falls high school gym, and Dixon will be entertained. As a rule before these big games a bear story is given out. Unfortunately the Rock Falls team will be unable to present its regular lineup against Dixon as Pignatelli will doubtless be out of the game, and this is no bear story. Coach Ted Scheid has done remarkably well this year in spite of numerous handicaps and he is hopeful of being able to make the Dixon boys bow to Rock Falls on the home floor. Regardless of the score he will have his boys in there fighting all the way.

AMUSEMENTS

"BLOSSOM TIME" ENGAGEMENT EXTENDED TWO WEEKS TO FEBRUARY 20

"Blossom Time" begins the third week of its splendid sojourn at the Studebaker with the S. R. O. sign repainted and ready to be put out at every performance. The sale of tickets, as well as the interest of the public is the keenest that "Blossom Time" has known in its history to date in this city, and Chicago has had no busier ticket office throughout the week than that of the Studebaker, where the queue of waiting purchasers has curled up and crowded the lobby of the Studebaker Theater to overflowing every day throughout the week. An extension was decided on by the management last Monday because the demand for seats far exceeded the seating capacity of the theater for the period originally allotted to the attraction.

Lured by the magic name of Franz Schubert music-lovers have been zealous habitués at "Blossom Time" performances, but now it seems "the world and his wife" have suddenly awakened to the fact that this opera etta is meat and drink for them, too. If it were possible to make arrangements with other attractions booked for the Studebaker, "Blossom Time" could now go on to the same sweeping triumph here that it had in New York City, where its record still stands, i. e., the greatest musical success that Broadway had ever known.

The players have risen to meet the great interest of the public with such spirit that the best performances of this notable play ever given in Chicago may now be witnessed these nights at the Studebaker. There will be three matinees this week including the special Lincoln's birthday matinee on Friday. The fact that the remaining performances will doubtless be played to overflowing audiences should be borne in mind by intending patrons.

Mail orders received now for the last two weeks and should be mailed at the earliest possible moment.

Is it because the Oakland Six is more beautiful—because it possesses more advanced features, including Air Cleaner, Oil Filter, Full Pressure Oiling System, Four-Wheel Brakes and The Harmonic Balancer? Or because it reveals greater speed, power, acceleration and smoothness of performance?

Each of these features plays its part; but there is an even stronger reason for Oakland Six popularity.

SYNOPSIS

In Paris Prince Michael Verne, on the Fete de la Mi-Careme, invites some passing street revelers to join his guests, because the leader, a pretty girl dressed as Columbine, attracts his philanderer's eye. Dolores, one of his cast-offs, threatens revenge. "Columbine" or "Collette," dances for Michael, but faints from over exertion. Michael lifts her into his arms just as his prim old Aunt walks in.

CHAPTER II—Continued

He hastily carried Collette outside and laid her on a chaise longue. Asking Armand to look after her, Michael then returned to the ballroom—and the Duchess. "This is indeed a delightful surprise, for I did not expect you until tomorrow," he said, although his feelings belied his words. "And Paul here, too? How are you, my dear brother?" shaking the hand of a young chap who had followed the Grand Duchess and who had witnessed the embarrassing scene with unholly glee. Ten years younger than his brother Michael, Paul was of an entirely different type. His was a pale, dreamy face with a peculiarly wistful smile. Michael was devoted to him and always looked forward to his visits, en route to college where he was finishing his last year. Michael had always shielded this younger brother from the gay, effervescent existence that had been his own lot. He had tried to interest Paul in the finer things of life. Not that Paul had no taste for a pretty face; for he had, indeed, as his smiles at some of the girls that grouped around him attested. It was, rather, that Michael, possibly realizing the hollowness and idleness of his own career, had determined that he would do all in his power to prevent Paul from following in his footsteps.

"Exactly the same Michael, I observe," said his Aunt looking around disapprovingly at the strange medley of guests. "Always the same old story. Wine, a gay time, more wine, a gay time. What a fool you have been—and are!"

Ninon rushed playfully into his arms.

"—and probably will be until the end of my days, my dear Aunt," Michael broke in blithely, resting his hand on Paul's shoulder. "Somehow or other I seem to experience considerable difficulty in changing my nature. Have you been here long?"

"No. We waited in the library for a few moments until that fool of a servant realized that I was fully determined to see you business or no business. But I guess his bad manners aren't his fault!" she remarked, with a meaningful smirk.

"I met a charming young lady in there," broke in Paul. "She seemed rather unhappy so I naturally did my best to cheer her!" Michael bit his lips verily. He thought Dolores had gone and was annoyed at the idea of Paul meeting her. If Paul and Aunt Sophia had only come on the morrow, as they had planned, what a relief it would have been. His Aunt was plainly annoyed at him, he could see that; but after all, that in itself was nothing unusual for accounts of his gaieties seemed to be carried to her willing ears with startling regularity. Her lectures and over his "barbaric life," as she termed it, were numerous and lengthy.

"It is late, Michael, and I cannot stay," the Grand Duchess said. "I only wanted to make sure Paul would be taken care of, and I would suggest that he retire soon for God only knows when you will finally allow the thought of sleep to enter your head! Perhaps Paul would rather come back with me tonight?"

"No, no. I will see that Paul gets a good night's rest, and you know how I look forward to the few days that he spends with me. Good night, dear Aunt. One of these days I may completely surprise you by retiring every night with the proverbial chickens and arising each morning with the early worms."

"If that ever happens, then the day of miracles has not yet passed," and with that irony lingering in the air behind her like crackling meteor dust, the Grand Duchess Sophia departed.

"One more score in Aunt Sophia's black book," groaned Michael to his brother. "Well, we can't all be saints, but for the life of me I fail to see her reason for disapproving of tonight's little party. I hope that I shall never reach the stage where the Fete de la Mi-Careme means nothing to me. And now, my dear Paul, please amuse yourself for a few moments while I see how our little Columbine is faring."

Walking over to the balcony he noticed Armand looking up and down the street. Collette was not on the couch.

"Where is Collette?" Michael asked.

"She's gone, Michael!" Armand answered. "A minute ago I left her for just an instant, and when I returned she had disappeared. She must have climbed over the balcony, for she certainly did not pass through the ballroom."

Michael laughed and sat down on the vacant chaise longue.

"The little rascal!" he said. "Just as irresponsible as all gamins."

And yet, did he in his heart believe that? His eyes fell on her mask where it had fallen beside the couch. Absently, he picked it up. Just a fluffy, trifling thing, but somehow its daintiness seemed symbolic of her.

Thrusting the mask into his pocket, Michael rejoined his guests in the ballroom just as Collette's friends were leaving; he insisted that they fill their pockets with fruit and bonbons from the table.

"You may get hungry ere dawn, so fortify yourselves well; and if you see my little Columbine again, pray present her with this apple, and tell her that not only is it the judgment of the Rue Chaligny—it is the judgment of Paris!"

So, with many laughs and thanks the motley crew departed, leaving the room once more to Michael and his friends.

Noticing Paul's absence, Michael assumed that he had grown weary of waiting and had retired. So Michael threw himself into the breach that his aunt's visit had caused, and soon dispelled the gloom.

"More wine, Sergius," he cried, "and let the strains of music waft away the darkening shadow of my revered Aunt's unexpected visitation! Remember, my friends, the night is young. Ninon, for once I am going to exercise brute force if necessary and tear you away from Freddy's arms for the next dance. Your refusal will simply mean that I shall personally insist on his singing again."

"Take me, Michael, I am yours, with such a fate as that hanging over my head!" Ninon rushed playfully into his arms.

The moonlight streamed like white, tangible romance through the French windows when the servants extinguished the lights of the huge chandelier in the middle of the room leaving only faint and elusive colored beams radiating from the decorative candle-labras on the side tables. The orchestra was playing a softly rhythmic waltz and the very air seemed aglow with enchantment and careless love, as the light-hearted waltzers glided through the half-lights like ghosts of ancient court ladies and cavaliers.

"A night fit not for the Gods but for us, Ninon," Michael murmured to his partner. "A moonlight night anywhere in the world is beautiful, but in Paris—and with such a charming dancing partner—it is—ah—" He left her to guess from his mellow nuances the completeness of his enslavement.

"Would you not rather be dancing with your little Columbine?" teased Ninon with a quizzical smile. "She seemed to attract you greatly, Michael, but beware—entertaining an unknown girl of the streets is sometimes a dangerous pastime! True, I do not suppose that she has relieved any of your guests of their jewels, but she may have a brute of an Apache for a lover or something like that. Gamin to thief—not an unknown quality, Michael!"

"I know Paris and its inhabitants pretty well—though I must admit that the process of education was a costly one—and I would swear that little girl did not have the face of a thief. It seemed to me that in spite of her foppishness there was a determined mind, a fine character, in that young head. True, her graceful dancing charmed me, but her laugh or I could see another side of her life, a I not a happy one. A struggle for existence, a constant fight for ideals in the face of tremendous odds. Somehow, I guessed that!"

Pittsburgh Sun Extra:

HORRIBLE ACCIDENT AT HAM-ILTON STEEL MILL.

Steel Magnate and Actress Burned to Death; Many Others Badly Hurt.

The most horrible accident has just occurred at the Hamilton Steel Mill, by which Paula Perier, the popular motion picture actress and John Alden Prescott, Pittsburgh steel magnate and millionaire, have lost their lives.

Many others in the moving picture company were seriously burned and a number of employees at the mill have lighter burns and ruined clothing.

At 11 o'clock today when the mill section of "Hot Steel" was being shot at the Graves Hamilton steel plant, the most terrible and unexplainable accident occurred which has happened at these mills.

A whole lot of molten steel deluged its unfortunate victims.

The director of the Paula Perier company began shooting on this long awaited and much talked of sequence at 9 o'clock this morning. Although there was quite a large cluster of interested friends and numbers of the mill employees about, everything seemed to go off in splendid shape.

The picture, by some very clever photography, was being made to look as though an accident of the same kind was going to kill the villain as really happened to Mr. Prescott and Miss Perier. This was to be done by patching and a miniature which would be photographed back in the studio. There was absolutely no danger but it was to be a thrilling punch.

The rehearsal went off all right. The villain took the heroine, Miss Perier, nearer and nearer the place where he was supposed to murder her and throw her body in an open hearth pit. Everything was ready.

"Camera!" called the director. Numbers of cameras began to turn on the people from every angle.

The villain's better nature was supposed to conquer at the point where, seeing that the lady coming to ward him had sprung a leak, flung the girl from him out of harm's way and tripped upon the ground to be supposedly covered by the fiery, molten mass, which would be done at the studio in miniature. There was absolutely no danger as planned.

Mr. Prescott who had been standing out of camera line bit in a place to catch Miss Perier, opened his arms as the actor flung her toward him and she fell into them.

The whole scene was almost finished and ready to be okayed when, to the horror of the spectators, the stopper at the bottom of the ladle really began to leak. As it was directly over Mr. Prescott and Miss Perier, the whole stopper fell to the ground and the great column of molten steel was upon them.

Maria haunts Barbara's home. Barbara goes home one afternoon to find it ransacked and her mother's diamond rings missing.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER LI

BARBARA jerked the drawer out and emptied its contents on the floor.

Then she searched through the gloves and ribbons and handkerchiefs. But the rings were not there.

She went out to the dining room. The silver had not been disturbed. Passing through the living room, she noticed for the first time that the samovar was lighted. On the table beside it sat a cup and saucer. The cup had contained tea. A bunch of mignonette in a glass of water was beside it.

A slip of paper protruding from beneath the saucer attracted her attention as she was about to turn away.

"Dear Barbara: This is a fine howdy-do, you'll think. But you don't need those rings, and I do. Daisy got mad today and turned me out. Just to pay her back I'll let you keep the samovar. Shouldn't wonder if it was as valuable as these two diamonds—it's been in her family for ages and ages."

"If you don't want it, try hooking it. Some day I'll pay you back for the rings. I'm really sorry to have to do it, for you've been nice to me. But a girl must live, mustn't she? And I wouldn't do you the wrong of coming to live with you, as you suggested. I'd have bought you more mignonette, but I had only a quarter."

"If the rings bring enough cash, I'll probably jump the next boat for Paris. Never been at home since I left the Quarter Latin. Good-by and good luck, Maria."

Barbara read the note several times. Then she put out the fire under the samovar and telephoned for a messenger.

In the interval before his arrival, she wrapped the samovar in strong, brown paper, wrote a note and slipped it under the string.

When the messenger appeared, she handed him the bulky package. "Take this to Miss Daisy Olivero, 73 Morton street," she said.

When he had gone, she went back into the bedroom and replaced the drawers in the dressing table. She was wearing a grim smile.

Miller was just coming out of Miss Furnival's office when Barbara passed down the corridor next morning.

"Miss Hawley?" he called, "are you very busy today? Miss Furnival hasn't shown up yet and we're almost shawped. Could you run off some 'Back Stage Briefs' for her column before you start out to get that Tellegen interview?"

Barbara walked toward him. "I'll manage it somehow, Mr. Miller. Have you any idea what's delaying Miss Furnival?" She peered into the room. It looked just as when she had left the night before. The top of Miss Furnival's desk was cleared and the hatrack was bare.

"Not the slightest," said Miller, removing his big cigar. "Deuced convenient time for her to play off on us, with the anniversary number going to press in two days. Her telephone doesn't answer."

"She must be sick," interposed Barbara. "She went home early yesterday. I'll run over to her home this afternoon and see how she is."

"Good idea," said Miller. "Just before noon the office boy entered Barbara's room. 'Queer-looking dame outside wants to see you,' said Miss Hawley. Says her name is Olive Oil or something like that."

Barbara smiled. "Show her in."

The woman who entered a moment later was slim and graceful. Her skin was dark, and a rich color burned in her cheeks. She wore a coat of some strange, embroidered fabric in many colors.

"I am Daisy Olivero," she announced. "Since I couldn't see you the other day, I've come to atone for it. I'll give you the interview now, if you like."

"Yes, indeed, though it will have to go in the next number now. It's too late for the current number. But first tell me whether the samovar arrived safely. I've been anxious about it."

Miss Olivero smiled languidly. "Yes, it came. And I was glad to see it, too. I rather thought my little pet was gone for keeps that little time Maria had a host of original little stunts like that. But this was the most serious she ever played on me."

"I didn't understand that she had actually taken it without telling you," said Barbara. "I supposed she had explained about it and meant to take it back to you in a few days. But it seems she meant to pay for my rings with it."

Daisy Olivero laughed again, this time more heartily. "No, she didn't take it for that purpose. Maria never thought that far ahead. She confiscated it one day after an argument we had on Schopenhauer. She maintained the most stupid obstinacy about him, and I was very angry and went away. When I came back, the samovar was gone. I didn't worry so very much, for I thought it would return one day, as soon as Maria got over her grouch."

"But things got worse instead of better. We quarrelled next day about Norman Bel-Geddes' stage settings, and the day after that she said my Welsh rarebit wasn't fit to eat. Finally we had the grand blow-up over who should take care of the narcissus jar in the window. When

Barbara fell back against the door, as a rush of gas met her nostrils. The room was in darkness save for a shaft of light from the transom.

Barbara walked along in the crush of pedestrians, looking at shop windows and passersby with keen interest. The panorama of New York was still fresh enough to intrigue her, though with acquaintance, Broadway and its theaters were growing stale.

There were no buses in sight on the avenue, so Barbara walked leisurely up the street, breathing the clear wintry air with pleasure.

The apartment building in which Elizabeth Furnival lived was shabby. It was situated, with characteristic New York incongruity, between two pompous stone houses with fret-work iron doors. On the steps of one stood a large stiff-necked footman, holding a leash to which was attached a Pekinese dog not much larger than a rat. The man stared over Barbara's head as she went by.

When she entered the hallway of Miss Furnival's building, she was surprised at its appearance. Thick dust lay on the stairs, and the odor of fried food hung about the corners.

Barbara went up the stairs to the third floor. A door immediately at the head of the staircase bore Miss Furnival's number.

She knocked lightly, and then more loudly. No one answered. She knocked again, but there was silence. Then she felt the knob. It turned unexpectedly, and she went in.

Barbara fell back against the door as a rush of gas met her nostrils. The room was in darkness, save for a shaft of light from the transom that fell slantingly to the floor just in front of her.

by the hostess and the social committee of the club, Mrs. Mattie Meredith, Mrs. Lorenzo Brewer and Mrs. Loveland.

The evening was one of enjoyment to all present and the cordial hospitality of Mr. and Mrs. Matten in welcoming the club and its guests to their beautiful new home was thoroughly appreciated.

The regular monthly meeting of the Woman's Club was held Monday afternoon, Feb. 1st, at the home of Mrs. Willis Reigle. There was a good attendance and an interesting program was presented by the program committee.

February being the birth month of our two greatest Americans they planned to make the program largely of a patriotic nature. The roll call, "Deeds of Great Americans", brought out many illustrious names and deeds of real service to our country.

Rev. L. V. Sittler, with a group of twelve boys from the local school gave a group of three songs, which were thoroughly enjoyed by the ladies. Rev. Sittler has charge of the musical instruction in the school this year, and it was very evident that the pupils are getting some thorough drill in chorus singing. We understand that he is organizing a glee club and orchestra in the high school, also. Such activity is of real benefit to the school and the community and is thoroughly appreciated by the Woman's Club, which stands for community improvement of all kinds.

Mrs. H. W. Dysart, a guest, rendered two very fine readings on the subject, "Our Flag." An article on "John Paul Jones" was given by Mrs. Arthur Morris, also one concerning the life of "Davy Crockett" by Mrs. Elizabeth Durkes. Miss Clara Lahman presented a number of views of Mt. Vernon by the use of the projectoscope which was loaned by the school. Mrs. Arthur Morris also had a group of views of historic places in the New England states mostly in Massachusetts. These were explained and described in a very pleasing way by Mrs. Morris, who visited in New England a few years ago and had seen most of the places illustrated.

The program committee wish to thank all who helped with the program, particularly Mrs. Reigle, who had the task of managing the projectoscope, also the school for the use of the machine.
